

I wanted to show a normal part of my day that acutally involves a lot espeically with a newborn a baby. There are lots of decisions to make before and during a babies feeding process. I tried to capture the essence of what goes into the process but there can always be more when it comes to a baby. Things can always change with a newborn but for the most part this is what I deal with. This is a daily ritual every 2-3 hours and sometimes get a nice break at night. I used Lucidchart for my format because it was one of the top recommended apps to use with Google Docs.
